

Gentlemen,

The "Do Not Call" law in NJ has given me back dinner with my family. If a salesman stood at my door and knocked every day, I could have him arrested. Why do you believe the telephone is any different? It is access to my home. However, the caller is not as easily identified. I've asked marketers to not call but they continue because they know how difficult it would be to "call the police" on them. Harrasment is harrasment, however it's delivered. Don't make it easier for them.
